THANKSGIVING. The little brown house by the road, With vines running up to the eaves,

And a flutter of wings in the leaves. oh! the little brown house was merry In the days that used to be, When the boys and girls, with their sunny

Were close at their mother's knee. But the little brown house by the road Is lonely now and still, For Robin is dead, and Alice is wed, And Louis must bide at the mill: ather is gray and silent, And the mother's foot is slow, And you hear the clock with its faint "tick

As you could not long ago. The little brown house by the roadwatch it stand in the quiet land, Under the quiet sky : To the hour of falling leaves, And the flush of the ripened sheaves. The little brown house by the road, Sudden and sweet it laughed to greet My eyes with a dazzling sheen; There were intaps in the twinkling win

I knew as I rattled past That the fire was bright on the And the children home at last,

To the little brown house by the road Had come Thanksgiving Day, And the wintry air, if they felt it there. Had the tender warmth of May. The father's tongue was loosened, And the mother's laugh was clear, For the chrism of love was poured above The home in the waning year. The little brown house by the road

Oh! mother, old and gray, Honest and true they return to you The children who went away: And Archie, afar on the sea. Never forget the tasks they were set, At home, by the mother's knee, From little brown homes by the road,

The strength of our land is brought, Paying their way from day to day, Simple and pure in thought. The chord of a grand Thanksgiving From homes like this ascends, Whose kingdom never ends.
